

The Chaparral Sketch

Finally, I want to thank everyone who has stopped by to see my show at the Hi Desert Water District in Yucca Valley. I've been showing my work for quite awhile but for some reason I was more nervous about this show than any other one that I've done.

Chaparral Artists to take trip to Calico

Editor

Calico is a mining town that came to life in 1881 during the largest silver strike in California. By the mid-1890's the price of silver dropped and Calico became a ghost town when all of the miners abandoned the town in search of new opportunities.

Now Calico is one of San Bernardino County's Regional Parks and is Chaparral Artists chosen destination for our excursion on February 25th. This trip like the other trips that we've taken is available to anyone who wants to go. Chaparral Artists doesn't charge to lead these trips.

Some changes have been made to our excursions. Advance reservations are now required. We will meet in one of the local fast food restaurants and those who want can have breakfast. When we have finished eating we will then caravan to our destination. (WARNING! The vehicle that I'm in stops unexpectedly so that we can take photographs of interesting things that we see.) Once we reach our destination it's not necessary to stay in a group. As long as everyone in your vehicle stays in touch with each other that's all that's necessary. Any vehicle can leave whenever they want.

Deadline to sign up for this trip is February 18th. You can sign up for

Dr. Valarie Carpenter was our guest speaker last month and she showed members some of the scrapbooks that she has created over the years. She briefly talked about creating a scrapbook on the Internet and that leads to this month's presentation.

Dr. Valarie Carpenter

Many of you have seen some of the books that I've created using the Internet. This month I'll show you various examples of books you can create as well as give you a list of on-line businesses where you can get books made.

For those of you who didn't attend last month's meeting; Chaparral Artists has instituted a new policy. It was decided that everyone should wear name tags and tags were passed out to everyone in attendance. Members who don't wear their name tags will be fined $50. It's not necessary for you to wear a Chaparral Artists tag as long as you have one with your name on it.

We have so many new members as well as forgetful members (me) that the Board of Directors decided to institute the new policy. Nancy Miehle has name tags for those who don't have one.

If you don't normally attend the art shows at A Roadside Attraction Gallery I would LOVE to see you at the reception there on Sunday, February 19, between 1 p.m. – 3 p.m. This is your chance to see the work of our young artists and show your support.

Pat, Nancy & Flat Stanley's first trip of the year

Editor

When I was at the opening reception of the Joshua Tree National Park 75th Anniversary Photo Contest exhibit I met botanist and naturalist Darrell Shade. During the course of our conversation he informed me that there were already several varieties of wildflowers blooming at the south end of the park.

Nancy P. and I have both been so busy lately that we haven't had a chance to get together since we attended the Yucca Valley Gourd Festival in November and a trip to photograph wildflowers was a good way to get back into the swing of things. I contacted Nancy and we made arrangements to go on January 22.

We drove to the Cottonwood Ranger Station and spoke to one of the Park Rangers who directed us to an area less than three miles down the road. We drove there and spent two and a half hours within a few hundred feet of where we parked our car and we found over 30 varieties of wildflowers blooming.

Each year we set a goal of finding at least one wildflower that we've never seen before. Usually it's later in the season when we find one but this year we've already reached our goal. Nancy was lucky enough to find it. We stopped at the Ranger Station on our way back and gave them a list of many of the flowers that we found. That's where we found out that we had found a Beetle Spurge. We were told that there were over 60 varieties of wildflowers blooming in the park that weekend.

It was cloudy the day of our trip and I wasn't sure if I would get any shots worth keeping but I got some shots that I thought were fantastic. I even plan to submit three of them for the Desert Wildflowers Exhibit at the 29 Palms Visitor Center and Gallery in March. I always have my favorite picture as the background on my computer and just replaced my African Lion photo with a photo of Canterbury Bells that I took on our wildflower excursion.

Bruce Miller at the Glass Outhouse Gallery

Editor

Chaparral Artists member Bruce Miller is the latest person to have a show at the Glass Outhouse Gallery east of 29 Palms.

Bruce says "When we moved to the area, my wife said to find a house with a lot of rocks. The first half of my show will be of what's on the rocks of our ranch. The second half will be rocks we've seen in our travels."

Bruce's show will run from February 1 to 26 with the reception on Saturday, February 4 from 1:00 to 5:00.

Ground Control Hobbies

Editor

I had heard about Ground Control Hobbies, located in the west end of Yucca Valley, but I never got a chance to stop by and check it out until just recently. I was pleasantly surprised at the wide variety of items that they carry. If you go in you will find leather crafting items, woodworking supplies, artist brushes, paints, sketch books, remote controlled vehicles, and much more.

In order to support our local artists; Ground Control Hobbies owner Eddie Tucker has decided to offer any artist who shows a current artists membership card (Chaparral Artists, 29 Palms Artists' Guild, MBCAC, Morongo Valley Art Colony, etc.) prior to checkout a 10% discount on all art supplies.

A night at the theater

Editor

In January I attended the opening night of the Neil Simon play "Jake's Women" at Theatre 29. The Soroptimist International Club of Twentynine Palms sponsored the opening night with lots of wonderful food, a silent auction and drawings. (I won a bottle of wine.)

This play directed by Butch Pelfrey served to showcase some of the many talented actors in the Morongo Basin. From twelve year old Kayleigh Couglin to the oldest member of the cast; the performance of each person pulled you in to the story and made you forget that you were actually watching a play and not seeing into Jake's life and mind.

If you've never been to Theatre 29 I highly recommend that you give it a try. You can see a high quality play for very little money and at the same time help keep the performing arts alive in the Morongo Basin.

K. W. Heckart (Jake) relaxing after his performance on the opening night of "Jake's Women".

A visit to the Salton Sea

Editor

January 28 was the first trip of the year for Chaparral Artists. There were four of us who met in Twentynine Palms for this trip to the Salton Sea State Park Recreation Area. Even though it started out extremely windy the wind eventually died down. We were able to photograph over a dozen different bird species which included a couple of white-faced ibis and a northern shoveler. We managed to do this all at one stop.

After taking a break to eat lunch we took a vote as to where we wanted to go next. It was decided to visit the mud pots near Niland since none of us

Dottie D. & Flat Stanley had been there before. When we first arrived there was one person at the mud pots. Then gradually more people began arriving. A large group of vehicles arrived as we were leaving. I never realized that the mud pots were so popular.

Some of the mud pots were sunk below ground level and just had bubbles coming out while others were several feet tall and a few were shooting out mud. I had heard that some of the mud pots were hot while others were cold. I saw a couple that were steaming so I decided that I didn't want to find out if what I heard was true or not.

It turned out to be a good beginning to our monthly trips.

Editor – To find out about our next trip read the article on Calico.

My New Year's Resolution

Editor

I don't usually make New Year's resolutions but I decided that I needed to make one for this year. Last year I felt Like I was stretching myself too thin so this year I decided to slow down.

Here's how well I succeeded in January. Each week I bowled on a league and went to a doctor's appointment. In addition on January 6th I attended a Chaparral Artists Board Meeting and on the 7th I attended Hilary Sloane's reception at the Glass Outhouse Gallery where I spent two hours taking photographs. Then I spent about an hour and a half at Kim & Bill Ortamond's photographing their horses. On the 9th was Chaparral Artists' meeting and then I went back to Kim & Bill's and took some more photos. A couple of days later I took a few photos in Yucca Valley. The same week I spent two days at A Roadside

Attraction Gallery helping to get the new show ready. I also hung my show at the Hi Desert Water District, attended the play "Jake's Women" at Theatre 29, and attended the opening reception of the exhibit of photos at the Joshua Tree Visitor Center.

Sunday kicked off the next week with the Artists Reception of "Artists on Display" at A Roadside Attraction Gallery. Then on Monday morning I attended a workshop held by Andy Woods at the 29 Palms Art Gallery. My reception at the Hi Desert Water District was on Wednesday and I had dinner with friends afterwards. The week ended with a potluck dinner with another group of friends.

The final ten days of January started with a day trip to the south end of Joshua Tree National Park, with a trip the Salton Sea and the mud pots on the following Saturday, and finally the Morongo Basin Horsemen's Association Playday at Parkers Arena in 29 Palms.

Paintings by Pat Lumbattis at the "Artists on Display" exhibit at A Roadside Attraction Gallery.

Of course I spent time working with my photographs and working on this newsletter. I also began working on a new line of note cards.

I probably traveled over 500 miles this month with more than 400 of those miles spent on photo excursions.

I've decided that I'm not making any more resolutions. I was so busy in January that I haven't even reviewed all of the photos I took. I'm not complaining because I enjoyed my month but I definitely didn't slow down. If anything; it was my busiest month yet. I don't think I was ever this busy when I worked full time.

Chaparral Artists History

Editor

Have you ever wondered about the history of Chaparral Artists? Who started the club and when did they start it?

I've been reading a couple of the club's scrapbooks from the 1980's and have been learning a lot about the history of the club. I think that many of you would be surprised by what the club has accomplished since it began almost fifty years ago in the early 1960s.

A couple of months ago there was an article in the Chaparral Sketch about Chaparral Artists' first judged art show. It's been suggested that the clubs scrapbooks be made available for review during our regular meetings. Due to the age of the books and the fact that the glue is beginning to come loose we will continue to see more historical articles about Chaparral Artists within the pages of the Chaparral Sketch instead.

Horsemen's Playday

Editor

Since I've been spending time photographing horses a friend of mine suggested that I attend the Morongo Basin Horsemen's Association Playday on January 25 at Parkers' Area in Twentynine Palms.

This was the first Playday that I had attended since I quit participating and it seemed strange to just be an onlooker. (I was going to say how many years it had been but I decided that it's too depressing to think how long it's been.)

Lori Parker

There was a nice turnout and it was fun to watch as there were riders of all skill and age levels as well as all types of horses and one mule.

I had forgotten to take a lunch but luckily Dan and Fay O'Brien, owners of Mustards Last Stand, were selling food and drinks. Even though they had the only concession their prices were reasonable. I started out by eating one hotdog. It tasted so good that by the time I was done I had eaten three! It's a good thing that I ran out of money or no telling how many I would have eaten.

I spoke to Lori Parker who, along with her husband Art, own the arena. She said that spectators are welcome and encouraged to attend the events there.

There's no charge for spectators and there's even bleachers to sit on. The next planned Morongo Basin Horsemen's Association event is scheduled for March 10 so mark it on your calendar so you can attend.
